

YANKS SQUEEZING AREA OF NAZI HIDEOUT

Meandering Along the Main Stem By WASH FAYETTE

When the "Centennial Celebration and Home Coming" was held here July 31 to August 3, inclusive, 1910, Herbert C. Campbell, who was then engaged in the photograph business, issued an attractive 40 page souvenir booklet, replete with illustrations about the city and county. The celebration marked the 100th anniversary of the founding of Fayette County.

Glancing through the booklet I find many things of unusual interest. For instance there is a picture looking west on Court Street, taken from about in front of where the State Theater is now located. The old town seemed to be swarming with horses, buggies and carriages, with one or two automobiles parked at the curb, and headed in the wrong direction. It was evident that there was no such thing as traffic laws in those days.

Another picture of profound interest is a large one of the Imperial Hotel, a three-story pressed brick structure located where the office building of the Midland Grocery Co. now stands, at the corner of Main and East Streets. This hotel was wiped out together with nearly all of the block up to Court Street in the memorable fire during the late days of December, 1911. Fred Hays was proprietor and L. G. Sprague, clerk, at that time.

In a picture of the Arlington Hotel I picked out one of myself standing on the corner watching Herb as he was taking the picture from the corner where the Finley Drug Store is located. Also in the picture is "White Wings", a white car owned by Clarence Craig. An auto with a scooter-like top stood in front of the Gossard Jewelry Store when the picture was taken 35 years ago.

Still another picture is of the Washington Milling Co. mill, S. Fayette Street, and the Gwynn Elevator on the opposite side of the street. Both have since been torn away, although for years the mill ground flour and meal that was widely used. The capacity of the mill was rated at 400 barrels daily. It operated day and night.

The C. A. Gossard Automobile Co. occupied the building next to the Record-Herald, on South Fayette Street, now occupied by the Coca Cola Bottling Co., and as I recall it the company handled Buick automobiles. In fact, I have a yard full picture of some of Charlie's Buick cars, lined up on the Fairground, with a group of men pictured with the cars.

There are many other interesting old pictures in the booklet, which can only be appreciated by examining them. I am glad Herb issued the booklet, for it is of great historical interest, and a copy will be in the Fayette County Museum some day.

SUICIDE TO MURDER BRINGS MAN TO TRIAL

Confesses Shooting Woman
Years Thought Suicide

WILLIAMSPORT, Ind., April 26.—(AP)—A former resident of Warren County was returned here today to face a murder charge in a death which for 30 years was believed to have been suicide.

The defendant, Thomas E. Livingston, 62, indicted recently by the grand jury, on a charge of murder, was brought here from Wooster, Ohio, by Prosecutor Fred H. Longwell.

Sheriff Fred McBroom said he had received a letter from Livingston in which the latter confessed he shot Miss Felicia Pearson July 1, 1914.

The sheriff said Livingston told him the shooting was the result of a triangle love affair.

JUDGE PAY HIKE REASONS GIVEN TO LEGISLATORS

Bingo Jolted by Committee;
Budget Bill To Be Ready
For House Next Week

COLUMBUS, April 26.—(AP)—The probate-juvenile judge in a small county has a pretty tough lot, the senate judiciary committee was informed last night as it listened to pleas for a salary increase.

Probate Judge E. C. Motter of Vinton, Ohio's smallest county, testified that he was paid $1,715 a year "and I spend as much money on those kids as I get in salary."

He was referring to the children brought before him in juvenile delinquency cases. "In the first place," Judge Motter told the committee, "I wouldn't have run for this job in the November election if J. Garfield Stewart had not told me that a special session of the legislature would increase the salary of the office. And I didn't know I would have to assume the juvenile court duties."

Mayor Stewart of Cincinnati was the Republican candidate for governor last November. In Vinton County, the common pleas judge receives $3,600 a year. Judge Motter said, "He handled 46 cases in the first two months of this year. I handled 104."

His biggest problem, he related, is keeping children in school.

"Vinton County," he testified, "has become filled with West Virginians and Kentuckians who do not believe in compulsory education."

"Well, these children are going to school, or the parents are going to jail."

As an example of juvenile problems, the judge said a 16-year-old, unmarried girl came to him after giving birth to twins, who died.

"She was infected with a venereal disease," he told the committee, "and I took $50 out of my pocket to have her treated by a physician, rather than send her to the girls' industrial school."

The committee postponed action on the bill, but some members indicated they were favorable to it. The author is Senator Tom Jones (R) of Middleport.

Jolt For Bingo
The judiciary committee of the Ohio senate last night voted to outlaw bingo, the game of corn and cards that produces everything from vegetables to grand pianos for the lucky players.

The move was vigorously opposed by representatives of Eagles, Elks and Moose Lodges, who said their organizations had raised thousands of dollars for charity through the scheme of chance.

The committee, however, heeded the plea of a ministerial colleague, Senator George G. Shurtz (R) of Newcomerstown, who declared that a law enacted two years ago, and interpreted in some quarters as legalizing gambling for charity, was "a rape of the constitution."

The Ohio constitution forbids operation of lotteries.

The judiciary committee recommended passage of Senator Shurtz's bill to put more teeth in the law providing fines and prison sentences for anyone operating gambling schemes.

The law says that anyone, to be convicted of gambling, must (Please Turn to Page Two)

Three-vote Demand To Be Made by Russia at Outset of Security Meeting in San Francisco — Opening Session Hears President Truman Say United Nations' Actions To Determine Chaos or Peace for World

SAN FRANCISCO, April 26.—(AP)—Russia's bid for three Soviet votes in a world assembly based on "sovereign equality" among nations today goes before the first business session of the United Nations conference.

Word of this plan ended hopes of some United States delegates that Russia might not raise the troublesome three-vote issue.

Foreign Commissar Molotov notified the chief delegates of the United Nations here, after yesterday's first meeting, that the proposal would be presented to the organization section of the steering committee beginning at 10:30 A. M. Pacific War Time (1:30 P. M. EWT.)

The specific proposal is that the Ukrainian and White Russian Soviet Republics should get conference seats and become charter members of the assembly of the proposed world organization. Two other top developments ushered the conference into its second day after delegates heard President Truman declare the world's future is a choice between chaos and the organized enforcement of peace.

Polish Puzzle
It was reported that Molotov had received a reply from Premier Marshal Stalin to his report on talks with Secretary of State Stettinius and British Foreign Minister Eden on the Big Three deadline over Poland. The reply apparently had not been communicated to Stettinius or Eden.

The sponsoring powers agreed on a conference executive committee of delegates of 11 nations and there was speculation that these 11 may form the membership of the proposed organization's all-powerful security council. The 11 are the council's five permanent members — United States, Britain, Russia, China and France — and six smaller nations — Iran, Belgium, Yugoslavia, Canada, Brazil and Mexico.

Delegations of the war's 46 victorious nations faced a crowded schedule, beginning, for the Americans, with a 9:30 A. M. (PWT) delegation caucus and running through another full-dress meeting in the War Memorial Opera House during the late afternoon.

This last session of the day will receive the report of the steering committee on organization of the conference. Stettinius is slated for permanent president. The report also may cover the Soviet three-vote issue and creation of the executive committee.

NEW CARRIER NAMED FOR LATE PRESIDENT

Mrs. Roosevelt Won't Launch
Ship, However

WASHINGTON, April 26.—(AP)—The Navy which Franklin D. Roosevelt knew, loved and built to first rank today paid the late commander in chief its highest tribute.

In a tradition-shattering move, the Navy assigned the name "Franklin D. Roosevelt" to one of its mightiest warships, the 45,000-ton aircraft carrier to be launched at the New York Navy Yard Sunday.

Originally designated the "Coral Sea," the vessel is a sister ship of the "Midway," launched last month at Newport News, Va.

At Hyde Park, N. Y., Miss Malvina Thompson, secretary to Mrs. Roosevelt, said the former first lady would not sponsor the carrier but planned to attend the ceremony.

'Battle of the Pockets' Next Job in Germany

WASHINGTON, April 26.—(AP)—Secretary of War Stimson declared today that the might of Allied forces during the past week has "torn and broken Germany's military power with a flat finality."

In his weekly war review, Stimson summed up the world military situation in this manner: "The entry of Russian troops into the blasted ruins of Berlin, the imminent junction of American and Soviet forces, and the push of the western Allies against the German coastal land on the north and the Bavarian Alps on the south—have torn and broken Germany's military power with a flat finality."

"The 'battles of the pockets' now get underway. The three main action areas are the Berlin corridor, the North Sea coast, including Bremen and Hamburg, with Denmark behind them, and the south German area embracing Munich and the 'redoubt' of the Bavarian and Austrian Alps."

Third, the magnitude of American and British power in Germany and the plight of the Reich should be a warning to Japan of what is coming to our enemy in the Pacific."

CINCINNATI UPSETS TIME APPLE CART
It Won't Change Sunday;
Neighbors Puzzled

CINCINNATI, April 26.—(AP)—Come Sunday, the chances are that anybody roving through southwestern Ohio won't know what time it is.

Kicking over the traces, Cincinnati's city council repealed an ordinance under which the city would have gone on Eastern War Time early Sunday. But some of Cincinnati's neighbors have legislation based on the assumption that Cincinnati would change.

They're out on a limb. Those who haven't yet acted aren't sure which way to jump.

Passed three years ago, Cincinnati's controversial time ordinance was repealed by a one-vote margin. It provided that the city use Eastern Standard Time through the five wintry months, and Eastern War Time in the other seven.

The councilmen paid no attention at all to a proposal in the state legislature to deny state funds to cities failing to conform to official state war time.

Jap Lines Cracked In Okinawa Battle

Yanks Now Control Ridge from Where They Can Start
Annihilation of 40,000 Nips Holding Secondary
Defenses - - Last of Japan's Home Islands
Bombed by Superforts

By LEONARD MILLMAN
By The Associated Press

Notable infantry gains on three Pacific battlefronts, including the smashing of the first Japanese defense line on southern Okinawa were reported today as Superforts bombed the Japanese home island of Shikoku for the first time.

The U. S. 24th Corps breakthrough on Okinawa, was no sweeping advance. But it was along the entire line and gave Yanks control of the skyline stretching across the island and overlooking the secondary defenses before the capital city of Naha.

A third of the Japanese garrison has been killed, leaving perhaps 40,000 to be eliminated.

Adm. Chester W. Nimitz announced 21,269 enemy soldiers have been killed in the Okinawa operation, including more than a dozen neighboring islands. Comparable American casualties, in three fewer days of fighting, were 7,424, including 146 dead, 296 missing and 5,982 wounded. The comparison excludes 4,700 American naval casualties, including 989 dead, and unestimated but probably far higher Nipponese naval losses.

Filipino Guerrillas topped reports from the southwest Pacific with the capture of Vigan, its airfield, and nearby Bantay on northwestern Luzon. Vigan is 80 miles north of the slow bitter Baguio front. The U. S. 33rd Division pushed to within 2,000 yards of this still strongly defended enemy headquarters.

The 24th Division advanced 16 miles on Mindanao to within 45 air miles of Davao, site of Japan's greatest pre-war colony in the Philippines.

British and Indian troops captured Toungh, tenth largest city in Burma and an important enemy base roughly 140 miles from Rangoon.

In the Okinawa advance, the 27th Division on the west recaptured Kakazu town.

PACKER URGES HIGHER SUBSIDY

Price Increase Would Lead To Wage Hike Demand, He Says

WASHINGTON, April 26.—(AP)—James D. Cooney, vice president of Wilson and Company, meat packers, told Senate food investigators today that if retail meat prices are raised "the Little Steel Formula will be shattered."

Mayor F. H. LaGuardia of New York had suggested a cent a pound higher ceilings in testimony before the agriculture committee earlier this week to help increase production and eliminate black markets.

But Cooney said organized labor would view a price boost as justification for knocking down the barriers to wage increases. The Little Steel Formula limits general wage hikes to 15 percent above the January, 1941, level.

Cooney said the only way to deal with the wholesale-retail price squeeze small packers have complained about is through increased subsidies. (OPA has announced a revised meat program, effective May 1, which it estimated would boost subsidies $34,000,000 a year. Some meat men have asserted, however, that this still will not eliminate their difficulties.)

Cooney was one of several representatives of big meat packers called to tell of conditions in Washington. Viewing the capital as a "sample city," the senators are endeavoring to trace meat from its arrival here to the consumer.

GRAND JURY INDICTS LAWYER FOR BRIBERY

SPRINGFIELD, April 26.—(AP)—The regular grand jury, which has been in session here for about three weeks, today was dismissed and Judge Marion B. Owen of Urbana, said it was because of "irregularities."

During yesterday's session, the prosecutor, Jerome A. Nevius, disclosed the jury was conducting an investigation of "bank night" and gambling in Clark County.

A special grand jury which investigated gambling, indicted prosecutor Nevius for bribery.

SWAMP SEARCHED FOR MISSING YOUTH

YOUNGSTOWN, April 26.—(AP)—Cuyahoga Falls police have been asked to search a swamp-land near that city for the body of Jerry Pascarella, 23, of Youngstown, who has been missing since Monday night.

Pascarella's car, with bloodstains in the trunk, was found near Cuyahoga Falls Wednesday.

A brother, Ludwig (Wally) Pascarella, asked police aid after he inspected the car. Ludwig expressed belief his brother had been slain.

Papers found at Jerry Pascarella's home here included letters and telegrams to and from coin device manufacturers. From the underworld came reports that Pascarella was active in the slot machine business.

TWO NAZI PORTS FALL
PARIS, April 26.—(AP)—The British Second Army captured Bremen today, clearing all the great port except the dock area and Burger Park north of the center of the city.

Russian troops have captured the port of Stettin on the Oder estuary, Premier Marshal Stalin announced tonight.

Rome reports said town after town was falling to patriot forces sweeping the Germans from the great northwest industrial area.

Victories Red army troops, driving from all sides battled weakening German resistance in the center of flaming Berlin today, Soviet front dispatches said.

"Men of the Red army today are fighting in the heart of the German capital," said a Tass story datelined "Berlin."

The dispatches probably referred to the vicinity of the Alexander-Platz, the center of the capital's business district. Earlier Nazi broadcasts said the Russians were storming the Alexander-Platz police and Gestapo headquarters, about a half-mile from the eastern end of Unter Den Linden.

Two American armies were but 41 miles from Munich, birthplace of Nazism, which rapidly was being encircled. The U. S. Third Army of Gen. Patton bore down from the north across the Danube, and Lt. Gen. Alexander M. Patch's Seventh was the same distance away from the northwest. Patton was 11 miles from Austria and 72 from Hitler's hideout at Berchtesgaden.

A juncture of Russian and U. S. Ninth Army troops across the Elbe seemed imminent. Front dispatches said some Soviet shells dropped a mile or two ahead of American lines.

Red army shells are falling occasionally a mile or two east of the Elbe River in the area of Arneburg, 48 miles northwest of Berlin, where the west bank is held by U. S. Ninth Army troops awaiting a juncture.

Red bursts of the Russian shells are part of a great drama of the war which can be seen from the top of a bluff here at Arneburg. Berlin's death throes are speeding a tide of panic-stricken humanity to the Elbe in front of the Russians moving westward. Except for the occasional shell, fired from no one knows where, the river is quiet.

The Americans stopped cross-river shelling when Germans appeared with white flags in this sector and begged to be taken prisoner.

On the opposite bank of the Elbe, across fields leading to woods, are lines of men and women as far as I can see. (Please Turn to Page Two)

COUNCIL HEARS STATE HEALTH BOARD LETTER

Old Order for an Improved Water Supply Here Is Pointed Out

Chief business before the city council Wednesday night at its regular session was City Manager W. L. Stambaugh's report and the action taken upon his recommendations.

One of the main things presented by Stambaugh was a letter from the State Board of Health, offering all assistance possible by that body toward an abundant and improved water supply for the city.

Attention was called to the purchase plan and results at Chillicothe, where a greatly improved supply of water was brought about by the city following its purchase of the plant.

It was stated in the letter that a full record of all municipal water supplies is on file at Columbus, and that an order issued against the water company here on Nov. 10, 1922 to improve the quality of the water by additional treatment devices, had never been complied with, due to change of ownership, etc.

It was noted that the order would be operative against the new owners if the city should acquire the plant, and that bonds for installation of such facilities as recommended should be included in the purchase price.

The state board asked that the city's engineer named to help fix valuations, be invited to call at the State Board office and confer about the additional facilities needed here to improve the water supply.

No action was taken regarding the letter, and the water plant purchase was not discussed further at the meeting.

A resolution presented by Stambaugh, asking for an additional advance of $4,000 from the County Treasurer, for the general fund, was adopted.

Stambaugh also told council that a recent action resulting from a collision of cars at North and East Streets, brought out the information that no ordinance made North Street a stop street south of Court Street, although a stop sign is on the intersecting street, and asked that an ordinance covering all such streets be adopted. He is to obtain the necessary information and the ordinance is to be presented in the near future.

Request that the city officials do something toward having the Water Company install proper water main extension into Roseview Subdivision, was presented, with the statement that eight families are now using water from a 3-4 inch private line installed by A. L. Rhoads, and extending from Washington Avenue through the addition. Two additional houses are being built to obtain water service from the same source, it was indicated.

Efforts will be made to have the water company make the necessary extension of a main at that point, it was indicated.

Budget Bill About Ready
The $426,000,000 biennial budget bill, principal business of the 96th general assembly will be ready for a vote in the House probably next week, it was reported today.

Chairman Paul H. Ballard of the House Finance Committee said it will delete all appropriations for capital expenditures, such as for new buildings, and put them in a separate measure. Approximately $36,000,000 in funds for capital improvements is involved.

After action by the House, the appropriations bill, carrying funds for operation of the state government in 1945-46, will be messaged to the Senate. At least two weeks of committee work will be necessary there.

OVENS IN PARK PROMISED AT ROTARY SESSION

New, Old Directors Meet in Country Club Wednesday For Nominations

The prospect of having furnaces in the new city park in time for summer picnics was offered at a meeting of the new and old board of directors of the Rotary Club at the Country Club Wednesday night.

Billie Wilson, chairman of the park committee, reported progress on planning improvements for the park and said he thought the ovens would be ready by summer.

Nominations for new officers, to be elected at next Tuesday night's Rotary meeting and to take office July 1, were made also Wednesday night.

Members of the board of directors who will take office July 1 are Ora Middleton, Leonard Korn and John Abernethy. Members of the present board are President W. H. Limes; Billie Wilson, A. B. Murray, Carroll Halliday, Webber C. French, R. W. Hays, F. E. Hill and Marilyn Riley. Hill, Riley and Halliday will go out of office June 30.

Limes was host at the meeting.

and sent to the House measures to increase salaries of appeals court judges and provide larger pensions for school teachers and public employees.

The judges' bill, besides increasing salaries, transfers to the state all responsibility for paying them, a step that would save the counties $84,000 a year.

The measure fixes $12,000 a year as the salary of all 27 judges in the state's nine district courts of appeals. The maximum is now paid in five districts, while the salary is $9,000 in two and $11,000 in two.

Until now the state has paid $8,000 of each judge's salary, the counties the remainder.

The provision for full payment by the state caused Senator Carl D. Sheppard (R) of Akron to remark that "local governments should take warning of what may happen if they continue to shift their financial obligations to the state."

The vote on the measure was 24 to 5.

The pensions bill, approved 29 to 1, raises from $2,000 to $3,000 a year the maximum income on which annuities may be paid in the teachers', school employees' and public employees' (state, county and city) retirement system.

It also increases the contributions of both employees and employers 4 per cent to 5, and provides that the minimum pension for 36 years' service shall be $50 a month, if the pensioner is more than 60 years old, or $45 if he is under 60.

A resolution proposing a state board of education was approved by the Senate and messaged to the House. If endorsed by the House, the proposal then would go before the state's voters for ratification in the November election.

Enactment of legislation extending the .65 per cent utilities excise tax for two years finally was completed when the House concurred in a Senate amendment.

The amendment deleted a provision authorizing local governments to use part of the revenue for soldier relief. For years the income has been used only for poor relief.

The Senate Conservation Committee listened for three and a half hours to debate on a House-approved bill to permit the killing of red foxes in any part of the state. It deferred action.

will get 9,000,000 pounds less beef than in April.

These facts were given the public today as the senate food investigating committee prepared to resume its meat inquiry.

President Truman called upon Americans to plant more and better victory gardens this year.

In extending the scope of meat rationing beginning Sunday, OPA specified that cull and utility grades of veal and lamb and all grades of the less popular cuts of veal and lamb, such as breasts, shanks, necks and flanks, should have point values.

Margarine will cost 12 points a pound instead of 8; so will all cheeses classified in group 1—such as cheddar, swiss and brick.

Changes in meat values include increases of from 1 to 2 points a pound for most cuts of all grades of lamb and veal, increases of a point a pound on most beef steaks, decreases of 1 to 2 points on beef roasts and other beef cuts. Utility grades of veal and lamb will carry the same point values as the higher grades.

Price Administrator Chester Bowles said point values were restored to the additional grades and cuts of meat to keep point increases on the more desirable cuts at a minimum and "to give every person the best chance possible to get his fair share of all the meat available for civilians."

Bowles predicted "definite improvement" in distribution "in the weeks and months just ahead" as a result of the new control program being put into operation.

Bowles said the hike in the value of margarine was necessary to keep consumption within the limits of the allocation—42,100,000 pounds for May compared with 40,800,000 pounds in April.

YANKS APPLY SQUEEZE TO NAZI HIDEOUT WHILE REDS BATTLE IN BERLIN

There are German soldiers who have thrown away their guns while fleeing in the hope of surrendering to the U. S. Ninth Army rather than fall in the hands of the Red Army.

There are American soldiers captured in Africa and Italy. There are British soldiers captured at Dunkerque, Belgium, French, Russians, Poles, Czechs. A few hours ago they were in prison camps. Now their captors are begging them for help.

There is the debris of Hitler's empire, rich Nazis, poor farmers, and officers trying to hide their shame in civilian clothes.

There is no question of party rank now. There is only one boat operating on the river below, a motor launch, and it is taking on only American, British, French and Belgian escaped prisoners of war. Germans sit by the hundreds, hoping to get across into the American lines.

At the same time other Russians were surging across the skinny waist of Germany to the south, across the Elbe and toward the U. S. First Army, as the Russians inside Berlin pressed a steel drive into the ringed and flaming capital's heart.

Marshal Ivan S. Konev's Ukrainians, in a historic advance, toppled the west bank fortress city of Riesa on the Elbe, 76 miles south of Berlin and 22 from last reported American positions on the Mulde River. They were 18 miles from German-reported American bridgeheads on the Mulde.

Perhaps 500,000 German troops were trapped in doomed Berlin as Premier Stalin announced complete encirclement by forces of Konev and the First White Russian Army.

NO BLANKS LEFT NOW FOR CANNING SUGAR

Whether applications for canning sugar exceeded expectations or there was just a shortage of blanks was conjectural, but the fact remains that there are no more forms available now at Fayette County's Ration Board.

This was disclosed at the board's office Thursday with a suggestion that there is no need for those who want canning sugar to come in for the blanks for a few days—there just are not any there. Without being specific, it was indicated that more probably would be in the near future.

The predicament made public, it was explained, in the hope that it would save some unnecessary trips, especially for those who would have to drive in from farms in the country.

sian Army of Marshal Gregory K. Zhukov.

The Nazi radio at Hamburg insisted Hitler still was in Berlin, and there was a possibility that Propaganda Minister Goebbels also was there. The city's water, gas, food and other services were running low as the Germans battled fiercely in the subways and rubble-littered streets under a hail of bombs and shells.

Patton's swift drive in the south, hammering at the Bavarian Redoubt on a broad front, sent an armored stab to Passau, 11 miles from the Austrian frontier. Infantry to the west had encircled Regensburg and Sulzbach and other troops bridged the Danube at a number of places. The Third's left flank sent a new thrust into Czechoslovakia which toppled Cheb, 11 miles southwest of Asch.

Lt. Gen. Alexander M. Patch's Seventh Army spearheads seized a strip of the Munich Superhighway 45 miles from that great south German capital.

In the north British troops fought in Bremen's streets. Other British cut north between Bremen and Hamburg and took Selzingen in an eight-mile thrust.

The First and Ninth American armies, awaiting the Russians, remained quiet.

In northern Italy the U. S. Fifth army seized Parma and Reggio D'Emilia in swift pursuit of the Germans. The British Eighth rolled toward a new defense line on the Aidge. The enemy, using all manner of transport, was fleeing in such haste that mountains of equipment were left behind.

The "Free Genoa" radio said Italian patriots controlled most of that city, and other reports said the Nazis had fled Milan and Turin toward the homeland redoubt, but pilots were unable to verify these statements.

About a hundred miles from the Third army's new advance on Austria were Red army lines aimed toward a juncture which would trisect German armies and encircle what remained of Czechoslovakia. Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky's second Ukrainian army has fought to the outskirts of Bruenn (Brno) in Czechoslovakia, one of Hitler's last war producing centers.

Italy-based RAF Liberator's struck the German redoubt city of Freilassing last night in an explosive follow-up to the bombardment of Hitler's eagle nest refuge and his chalet near Berchtesgaden.

American and British airmen were jubilant over the strike at Hitler's hideouts yesterday. The sumptuous chalet was destroyed by a direct hit from a six-ton bomb. Deep-penetrating explosives were hurled upon his Kehlstein mountain fortress with unannounced results.

Freilassing is a road and railway junction 13 miles north of Berchtesgaden, which itself is only 72 miles ahead of American ground troops and a few miles from Russian vanguards.

It was disclosed today that 350 RAF Lancasters were used in the strike.

THE WAR TODAY

—By DEWITT MACKENZIE—

(By The Associated Press) Destruction of Hitler's Berchtesgaden home with a 12,000 pound earthquake bomb has provided a happy departure from the general war-practice of not gunning for heads of states, although unfortunately the chances seem small that the barbarian was in his house.

The dictator's death might easily end the war immediately, making it unnecessary to sacrifice more Allied lives to clean up the last pockets of German forces. That it, it probably would end the war if his death became generally known to his scattered forces, since loyalty to him provides the main reason for continued resistance.

The Fuehrer's death "in action" also would be a boon to the post-war world, because his capture and punishment after trial will make a martyr of him in the eyes of his followers and add to the Allied difficulties in the reformation of Germany.

Under normal circumstances it has been the practice for bombing expeditions—both in this war and the last one—to avoid the residences of rulers and other chiefs of state, who fall in the category of civilians. The case of Hitler the Hun, however, is unique in that he not only is the actual military commander but his hands are wet with the blood of hundreds of thousands whom he has murdered, and he is a fugitive from justice.

During the last war even the Germans followed the code of not molesting rulers. A typical example was the king of the Belgians, who lived throughout the conflict in a farm-house not far from the fighting lines. There wasn't a day when the royal family couldn't have been wiped out.

There also was a sort of tacit understanding in those days that general military headquarters, and even Army headquarters, should be immune from bombing. The armies on both sides avoided hitting such targets, the point of course being that the blasting of an Army headquarters would bring quick retaliation in kind from the other side.

That sounds unreal in these days of Hitlerian savagery. There hasn't been a war like this since the time of the barbarian conquerors, but retribution is descending on the guilty heads. We have a reminder of this in a dispatch today from Moscow, quoting a Russian war correspondent who is with his troops in the Berlin inferno. After reporting that virtually every German in the capital is opposing the Red attack, he adds grimly:

"But the Red Army cannot be kept from crushing the city. Many men around me have Berlin addresses and scores to settle. I could hear them repeating their addresses as they fought."

That means a partial pay-off for the horrible atrocities which the Germans have committed on Russian soil. The Russians have long lists of Germans who are guilty of war crimes. These lists have been built up from the testimony of eye-witnesses. We may be sure that the Hitlerites who have participated in atrocities will suffer the full penalty—quickly.

NOTE FROM OFFICER SENT WOMEN'S CLUB

It Was Written in Thanks for Ditty Bags

The Conner Farm Women's Club again has a letter from a Navy officer thanking them for the ditty bags they made here.

The clubwomen sewed 432 of the bags for the Navy. They were distributed at ports of embarkation and the members of the club today feel amply repaid for their work by the letters from the front that the bags are in use.

Lt. Eugene C. Johnson wrote this note to the club: "Just a note to thank you for the ditty bags my crew received from your chapter of the Red Cross. As they were very much needed I know your efforts would be justified if you could see them hanging on every bunk and in constant use. Thank you so much as we truly appreciate your kindness."

ASSURED WAGES STUDY APPROVED BY EAGLES HERE

Unanimous Resolution Passed by Fayette Aerie at Meeting

The proposed War Labor Board study of a guaranteed annual wage plan today had the full support of the Eagles Lodge here.

A resolution endorsing the study was adopted unanimously at the regular meeting of the aerie after the legislative committee of the order had placed its stamp of approval on it.

The resolution adopted pointed out that "the annual wage is an instrumentality which will encourage employment and assure workers a steady and predictable income to stimulate the continued turning of the wheel of industry."

The Eagles are one of the pioneering groups which have sought to encourage adoption of the annual wage by industry wherever feasible. The annual wage is a major provision of the Eagles' program for stimulation of postwar employment. As early as 1930, the order at its national convention in San Francisco went on record to approve the guaranteed annual wage and suggested a study by labor, industry and government, such as now planned by the War Labor Board with the approval of the late President Roosevelt.

As a preliminary step toward this study, the WLB has appointed a subcommittee to undertake the task. Members are Eric Johnston, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce; Philip Murray, chairman of the CIO; Albert Gross, head of the National Grange, and Mrs. Anna Rosenberg, labor and manpower expert.

The resolution adopted by the aerie here declared in part: "Mass unemployment after this war is the ugly spectre which now stands in the way of winning the peace and hangs over the thinking of our people. There must not be a return to breadlines and public relief. The social, economic and political fabric of America cannot endure another long depression, and the future of 'our way of life,' the democratic institutions which we revere, rest upon our will and ability to provide postwar full employment for American workers."

"The guaranteed annual wage is a practical and attainable objective, and its realization will fulfill the yearning dream for security which crowds the heart of every American worker and his family."

The resolution pointed out that the appointment of the WLB subcommittee fulfilled the Order's request for an "early consultation and concert of action by labor, industry and government to the end that plans and legislation may be formulated to achieve this (guaranteed annual wage) goal."

RILEY FOUND GUILTY OF HITTING PATIENT

Severe Penalty Is Provided by Federal Law

Harry L. Riley, 52, of Washington C. H., was found guilty of assaulting a mentally ill patient at the Chillicothe Veterans Hospital, March 31, 1944, by a Federal Court jury at Columbus, Wednesday after the jury had deliberated two hours.

Judge Meil Underwood remanded Riley to the custody of the U. S. Marshall to await sentence. The maximum penalty for the offense is six months in jail and $500 fine.

Two co-workers testified that Riley jumped on a patient's stomach, causing a bladder rupture, because the patient refused to repeat a self derogatory statement.

CITY CLOTHING COLLECTION TO BE PACKED HERE

Volunteer Workers Will Sort Clothing at Central Over Week End

The clothes which are to be collected in a city-wide clean-up Friday will be sorted at Central School over the week-end by volunteer labor, it was announced today.

The pick-up by a fleet of a dozen trucks is scheduled to start at 9 A. M. All the housewife needs to do is put the clothing her family is giving to the United National Clothing Collection on her front porch. The trucks will do the rest.

A dozen vehicles from the city, county and state highway departments will be used to make the door-to-door collection, designed to clean out the corners of every clothes closet in Washington C. H. to find clothing European refugees can wear.

The clothing already collected, packed and sorted by organizations throughout the county are in storage at the county infirmary building.

How Long, O Lord?
War horrors continue to pour in from Europe and Asia. The news services have told lately of 1,100 prisoners deliberately burned to death in a big German concentration camp by Elite Guard troops at Gardelegen, in the process of evacuating a concentration camp. The victims were Belgian, French, Polish and Dutch.

A survivor of the holocaust, who told the dreadful news, said the prisoners were all marched into a big brick warehouse; then the straw on the floor, two feet thick, was ignited, and all escape closed off. The result was "a pile of charred bodies six feet high."

Such a tale would be dismissed as impossible in these supposedly civilized times, if deeds no less dreadful had not been proved against the Nazis again and again. And similar stories, apparently authentic, have come repeatedly from Japan, seeming like horror tales of the Middle Ages. Very likely some of them are exaggerated, but they cannot all be false.

The Biggest Job
The presidency grows too big and too hard for any man. Not only in war time but in peace time it tends to wear out every chief executive, and also many of the minor executives. More and more federal employees are drawn into the vast system of political control at Washington, and what was once a small capital becomes a large city, devoted almost entirely to federal administration. Government itself is now an industry, steadily growing in complexity.

It makes a thoughtful student of history think of ancient Rome, and how that system of life and government spread until it became too large and loose for effective control, and it slowly went to pieces.

Our country, however, has great advantages over any of the old systems of government. Modern mechanical inventions give any executive enormously better facilities for his job. Our President can communicate almost instantly with any part of the country, for information or the execution of orders.

But even so, the weight of responsibility is too great for one man. Ancient Rome divided the job between two men, alternating in six-months periods. Shall we have to do something like that? Or can we get along by stripping the presidency of many small responsibilities now cumbrer it or sometimes unnecessarily assumed?

The Good Life
For some time college students in this country have had things pretty much their own way, and at last many educators seem to be coming to the conclusion that they have made a mess of it. So some of the leading institutions, including Yale University, have decided to reform and get back to basic principals. The students, it is decided, must do some real studying again, and the faculty is going to take a hand in deciding what they're going to study.

For 30 years, says Dr. Charles Seymour, the students have had no "standard of values," and so have messed up their education by tackling whatever happened to please their fancy. Now the university is

Hints on Etiquette

In these servantless days, it is considered correct to start eating when you are served without waiting for the hostess to take the traditional bite.

Today's Horoscope

The prime considerations of your life are loyal friends and loved ones at home. You are generous, practical and shrewd in your business judgments, and inspire the confidence of others. Your friends should prove helpful to you. Avoid money or real estate risks right now. Think carefully before you make changes. They may be ill-advised. Also leave no loop-hole through vagueness for a wrong impression of what you write or say. Be moderate in what you ask others to do.

going to stop "being a service station" and give real instruction in things it can do well. Students must be trained to know what is good and what is merely second rate, and must discover again what the great teacher Plato called "the good life."

All this sounds sensible to people who really want to be educated. It may start a new trend and a greater desire for real learning.

We Could Be Less Careless

A heartrending story came from across the Pacific the other day. A bomber crashed and a member of the crew was hopelessly trapped in the flaming wreckage. After a number of futile attempts at rescue, an officer among the horrified spectators, unable to stand the victim's screams longer, stepped up and ended the doomed man's life painlessly with his service 45. The officer was later exonerated at a military trial.

The foregoing incident was a tragedy of war. Yet it differs from similar incidents that happen regularly in peacetime only in respect to the method by which the person dying in the flames was put out of his misery. The ten-thousand-odd souls who die by fire in this country every year do it the hard way. They simply scream until they are cooked.

If this sounds unnecessarily morbid and merciless, take a look at the nation's fire bill—upwards of half a billion dollars. When it comes to fire, America is grossly careless. We are careless in our homes. We are careless in our factories and around places of amusement. We are careless in our forests. The result is fire destruction on a scale of almost unbelievable proportions.

We could do something about fire if we wanted to. We could be less careless. We could heed the lessons of experience and fire prevention authorities, which tell us over and over that real fire prevention is a highly individual business—a question of detail, of putting out matches and cigarettes properly, cleaning up the basements and attics, keeping heating facilities in good order.

Most of these things could logically be done now. Spring is here and spring is clean-up time. Why not clean up right? Prevent fire, help save lives.

The Treatment of Chronic Breast Pain

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M. D.

THERE is a condition which may develop in the breasts of certain women known as chronic cystic mastitis or cyst formation in the breasts.

Before this condition develops there may be pain in the breasts known as mastodynia. This pain at first may be slight, and occur only before the regular periods, but as time passes, it may become more severe and finally last for several weeks. In some instances, the pain clears up, but in some cases other conditions known as adenosis of the breast may develop.

The treatment of painful breasts with glandular extracts known as estrogenic substances has been recommended. The treatments are given by injection into a muscle twice a week for several months. Then they are given as a rule, twice a month for the next two months, and then once a month until a total period of six months has passed. As a general rule, this type of treatment brings a great deal of relief, if not a cure.

If the condition of painful breasts is allowed to continue, adenosis or so-called "shoty breast" may develop. In this condition, there are small lumps in the breast like hard pieces of material or shot. That is why it is referred to as "shoty breasts."

According to Doctor Herbert H. Hesser of Kansas, adenosis develops because of some disturbance of the pituitary gland located at the base of the brain. The secretions from the pituitary gland have a part in regulating the action of the ovaries.

In adenosis, treatment with estrogenic substance also would appear to have a good result, because the estrogens affect the pituitary gland. On the other hand, the condition may be treated with a substance known as testosterone propionate, since this material has the action of suppressing certain secretions formed by the pituitary gland. Doctor Hesser has had good results in giving injections of this material twice a week for a period of six months.

Doctor Hesser also thinks that treatment with estrogenic substance may be helpful in cystic disease of the breast in which sacs containing fluids or cysts are present. He has not found X-ray treatment of help for painful breasts, for adenosis or for cystic diseases of the breast.

There are some physicians who believe that cystic disease of the breast is a forerunner of the development of breast cancer and for this reason when chronic cystic disease is present they advise surgical removal of the breast. However, it would appear that there is some division of opinion on this matter. Other physicians favor treatment with glandular extracts in an attempt to control the condition. In each case, the physician will have to decide what form of treatment will be most successful.

Whenever painful breasts develop, a careful study should be made at once to determine, if possible, what is producing the difficulty. In early cases, treatment with glandular extracts may be satisfactory in controlling many of these cases. In other instances, operative treatment may be required.

Tomorrow, Dr. Bundesen will discuss "Relief of Paralysis."

HOPES FOR TAX CUT SPIKED BY SEN. TAFT

WASHINGTON, April 26—(AP)—Senator Taft (R-Ohio) today disputed a prediction by Rep. Doughton (D-NC) of possible tax adjustments "right after V-E day."

Taft is the second ranking Republican on the tax-writing senate finance committee. Doughton is chairman of the house ways and means committee and of the joint committee on internal revenue taxation.

"I don't see any possibility of any tax reductions except of the most minor nature as long as the war with Japan continues," Taft told reporters.

SYNOPSIS
Young Gail Benton is the only woman doctor in Beauchamp. That she was a good doctor, not a man on the Thayer Hospital staff could deny—although none gave her much cooperation. Dr. Cassius McCormick, austere chief of staff, was openly resentful when she challenged his diagnosis of an obscure clinic patient named Zayle. Gail went over his head in ordering an X-ray for Zayle, and now feared the appointment as Dr. McCormick's assistant, for which she hoped, would go to Dr. Ralph Kramer. The latter has been showing more than a professional interest in Gail's wealthy young cousin, Lucienne Thayer, who was recently hospitalized for an appendectomy. Agnes and Howard Thayer, stepmother and father of Lucienne, were entertaining Howard's middle-aged sister, Reyna Thayer, who years ago had left Beauchamp after breaking her engagement to Cassius McCormick. Gail, who resents being a Thayer "receptionist," is escorted to the reception by Burke Gentry, young lawyer. Reyna liked Gail instantly, and introduces her to Stephen McCormick, the doctor's recently returned war hero son. Stephen is a newcomer to Beauchamp, having lived abroad with his mother following the latter's divorce from Dr. McCormick. When Reyna sees Dr. McCormick she deliberately turns her back on him. Later, Gail's search for Burke is interrupted by Reyna who complains of feeling ill. She indignantly refuses to consult Dr. McCormick, who has always been the Thayers' family physician, so Gail makes her comfortable for the night. Burke is furious at Gail's prolonged absence, especially when he learns she has spent part of the time with Stephen McCormick.

CHAPTER ELEVEN
They were driving along the boulevard now, and the damp river air cooled their faces. "Well, what is the point?" he demanded.

"Your faith in me. Our faith in each other!" She took a deep breath. For a long time, she'd been worried about their love. It had seemed to her that they were drifting along, getting nowhere. The future appeared less certain than it had four years ago. "Something has happened to us, Burke," she said. "We're pulling apart, instead of together. There are too many moments when we act like enemies instead of people who love each other. Darling . . . what are we going to do?"

"That's pretty much up to you," he answered coldly. "The way you keep harping somebody'd think it was all my fault. Well, let me tell you something, Gail. I'm not so sure you'd make a good wife. I wouldn't be marrying just you, but also that old woman—what's her name, Mrs. Spaulding, and the little German kid, and every darn patient you've got!"

"Doctor—my husband! He is—"

"While we're at it," he said, "We may as well call it a lifetime."

Gail left the hospital and walked slowly across the Square, the late afternoon sun beating down on her head. She had just left Dr. McCormick, who had admitted icily that her hunch on Mr. Zayle's illness had been correct. The encephalograph had given evidence of a neoplasm in the brain. She had been right. But there was no triumph in her heart. She was sick with pity for the Zayles, for the man who must suffer the risk of a brain operation; for his wife who was waiting so tensely for the news. . . .

Slowly she opened the restaurant door and went in. "Mrs. Zayle's in the back room," the countermaid said, recognizing her. "She don't feel so good—"

Gail walked into the rear. Mrs. Zayle was sitting in a straight chair. She was a middle-aged woman with kind eyes behind steel-rimmed spectacles, and a patient smile. As she looked up at Gail, the dull, stupefied expression of her face changed, shifted until her features stood out stark and terrified.

"Doctor—my husband! He is—"

"Burke!"
"It's the truth! I've thought about it plenty of times. You're a doctor first, and don't kid yourself. Your husband and your kids—if you'd want any—would take the leavings of your life."
"But you're wrong, Burke. Please believe me. I do want marriage and a real home and children."
"That's what you say."

There was a strange heaviness in the region of her heart. "Then it isn't Stephen McCormick, or a dozen like him—that you are jealous of. It's my work." She was staring, wide-eyed and frightened, at his averted face. "You couldn't be so petty, Burke!"

He said bluntly, "Well, how broadminded are you? You certainly have only one real interest in life. Maybe my mother isn't so far off when she says medicine is a revolting career for a girl. I don't think—"

"You mean your mother doesn't think!" she interrupted furiously. "You didn't come to that conclusion yourself?"

"What are you trying to tell me—that I'm a stooge?"

She said wearily, "We'd better stop this right now! Let me off here, please. I'll get a cab."

"I'll take you home," he said nastily. "There may be an emergency call waiting for you. My dear doctor."

Burke. This bitter-mouthed, exasperating man, whom she wanted to shake, was Burke. This was a dream, a terrible dream.

"Very well." Now her mouth was shaping words she didn't mean, words she would later give anything to retract. "We'll call it a day."

"While we're at it," he said, "We may as well call it a lifetime."

Gail left the hospital and walked slowly across the Square, the late afternoon sun beating down on her head. She had just left Dr. McCormick, who had admitted icily that her hunch on Mr. Zayle's illness had been correct. The encephalograph had given evidence of a neoplasm in the brain. She had been right. But there was no triumph in her heart. She was sick with pity for the Zayles, for the man who must suffer the risk of a brain operation; for his wife who was waiting so tensely for the news. . . .

Slowly she opened the restaurant door and went in. "Mrs. Zayle's in the back room," the countermaid said, recognizing her. "She don't feel so good—"

Gail walked into the rear. Mrs. Zayle was sitting in a straight chair. She was a middle-aged woman with kind eyes behind steel-rimmed spectacles, and a patient smile. As she looked up at Gail, the dull, stupefied expression of her face changed, shifted until her features stood out stark and terrified.

"Doctor—my husband! He is—"

"He is alive," Gail said quietly, sick with regret that she could not say anything more hopeful. She talked a little, trying to calm Mrs. Zayle, then returned to the hospital. In the main corridor, she collided with Dr. Ralph Kramer.

"Hi, Gail!" he cried with false joviality. "How're tricks?"

Ralph Kramer was of medium height, yet he looked shorter, for his frame was stocky and there was a heavy slouch to his shoulders. His face was square and powerful, the face of a fighter. His dark coarse hair covered his head like a heavy cap, emphasizing his rather small, faun-like ears.

Gail had interned with him at the hospital, and had never liked him. He was too smooth, too clever, nor was he, she suspected, above using a woman to further his ambitions. Lily Lanahan, the red-headed nurse, was often his companion.

"I hear you had a lucky break with that old guy, Zayle," he said. "I wouldn't call it luck," she said.

"Doctor McCormick is operating on him in the morning," he said. "Wants me to assist at the operation. Suppose you'll be showing up, too?"

He nodded and went down the hall. She watched him blankly. What did that mean? That she was out of the running—that Dr. McCormick had already decided on Kramer for the job of his assistant?

Well, even though it was a blow, she couldn't stand here and worry about it. She picked up her bag in the office and hurried out to the car. Reyna Thayer was desperately ill. And the illness wasn't, as Gail had first suspected, the gripe. It was something much more serious and, so far, Gail didn't know what.

Not once all day had the rain come down in a torrent. It merely hung in the air, a superfine mist that saturated your hair and your clothes until you were one soggy mass.

Gail parked her coupe before the hospital and ran up the wet, slippery stairs. She'd misplaced her slicker, and the light tweed coat she'd thrown over her gray chambray suit was heavy with moisture. Normally the weather had little effect on her. She had no time for moodiness. But this had been a long, disappointing and depressing day.

It had started at five in the morning, with a frantic call from young Mrs. Henderson. The baby had the croup. He is choking, doctor. Will you come quickly?

Gail flew into her clothes, drove swiftly through the quiet streets to the small house in Springdale. At six-thirty, the pale child was sleeping quietly, and Mrs. Henderson was making toast and coffee for Gail. "Gee, I'm sorry, doctor. Getting you outa bed so early. . . ."

Strong Man Can Give Horses a Lift

PHILADELPHIA — Twenty years ago, when Russian-born Joe Paul was starting out in the wholesale meat business, an abattoir operator joked:

"Joe, if you'll carry that three quarters of a beef home on your bicycle I'll give it to you for five cents a pound."

Joe hoisted the carcass, grinned and rode off with it.

Even now, at 52, he can carry a horse, tie an iron bar in knots with the aid of his teeth, and drive a blunt ten-penny nail through a two-inch oak plank, with his bare hands.

When skeptics entered his shop about a year ago and informed Joe they knew his feats of strength were all tricks, he agreed.

"I'll show you how it's done," he said, and walking across the street he unhitched a horse. He lifted the animal to his shoulders and carried it to the door of his shop. "Now, gentlemen," Joe said, "You know the trick. Will you please carry the horse back?"

Joe is six feet two inches tall, weighs 220 pounds, and—fortunately—is the soul of kindness. He has been guardian, grub-staker and job-finder for 200 paroled convicts, not one of whom has failed his confidence, and has sponsored some 300 European refugees, sending half a dozen through college and paying medical bills for others.

Bear cubs are usually born while the mother is sound asleep in winter hibernation.

WASHINGTON — The songs of the Presidents, their likes and dislikes, their ear (or lack of ear) for music, are recalled in the anecdotes that are being brought to mind again as a new chief executive takes up his duties.

One source of the anecdotes is George O'Connor, a title company president who, for his tender delivery of Irish songs, has become as much a part of life in the nation's capital as the Easter egg roll on the White House lawn.

Future Events

A lengthy and absorbing history of the Fayette County Children's Home, compiled by the present superintendent, David Whiteside, was read by Mrs. Earl Leach before a large attendance of American Legion Auxiliary members when they met in the American Legion Home for the regular meeting. Mrs. Leach, chairman of the program, is also chairman of the child welfare committee.

Mrs. Whiteside, a guest of the auxiliary for the meeting, then led a round-table discussion and answered questions on her work as matron of the home and with the children.

Preceding the interesting child welfare program, Mrs. Emerson Chapman, president, conducted a business meeting during which many important plans were discussed and completed for future projects. Before this, however, Mrs. Chapman asked a prayer that the peace conference will be successful.

It was decided to donate cookies at intervals to the Lion's Club Canteen for service men and women which is open for their enjoyment and convenience at the bus station.

Mrs. Charles Bryant and Miss Essie Thornton, of the flag committee, reported the purchase of a large flag to be dedicated at the high school in the near future. Supt. A. B. Murray and Principal S. C. Brown are to set the date for the dedication ceremony and an assembly of students will precede the outdoor services by the auxiliary.

Several members have already made reservations for the luncheon on May 5 in Columbus when the national president will be the honor guest, it was reported by Mrs. Harry Smith, who is taking the reservations from auxiliary members and other guests who wish to attend what promises to be an outstanding event on the year's calendar of activities.

Mrs. Arch Riber, chairman of the poppy day committee, announced her completed plans for the sale when the Rotary Club sponsored Boy Scout unit, as well as younger girls, will be in charge of the sale downtown.

A tempting array of foods will be served at the American Legion Home at noon on that day to the youngsters who so willingly take over the poppy day sales.

On May 9 the auxiliary will serve the Foremen's Club dinner when the Ohio Bell Telephone Company will be in charge. This also is ladies' night and several guests are to be included along with the members. Fred Rost will preside as scoutmaster for the program which will follow the dinner hour.

Mrs. Mada Hughey, gold star mother of Paul H. Hughey Post 25, will be a guest of the Foremen's Club and the auxiliary, when a special mother's day tribute will be paid her.

Mrs. Chester Dunn was appointed chairman of the kitchen arrangements by the president, and Mrs. H. C. Smith, dining room chairman.

At the conclusion of the most interesting and enlightening program, Mrs. Darrell Weinrich of the social committee, served a dainty array of tempting delicacies. An informal social hour of visiting climaxed the affair.

Number of Dinner Guests

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Hines and daughter, Connie Marie, entertained as guests at their country home on Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. John Long, children, Phyllis, Shelby Jean and Stacey Lamar, South Solon; Mrs. Irene Corney, West Jefferson; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Moats, children, Jackie, Jimmie and Bobby, Mr. and Mrs. Everett Arnold, children, Marvin and Gary, all of this city.

Additional guests on Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. Ater Arnold and also Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Hines and daughter, Edna Marie.

Readings Given
At Wesley Mite
Meeting Here

Mrs. Darrell Weinrich opened the Wesley Mite Society meeting at Grace Methodist Church on Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 by asking all to join in singing a hymn followed by devotionals by Mrs. C. D. Overstake.

Mrs. Weinrich conducted a business meeting of importance at the conclusion of which Miss Cordelia McCafferty took charge of the program. Mrs. Ola Boyer and Mrs. Lester Dodd gave a sketch in readings and also a dialogue scene entitled, "A Place For Everything."

Mrs. Rex Pittenger favored the assemblage with a piano solo and Miss McCafferty read a paper on "Equal Opportunities." Group singing of "Blessed Be The Tie That Binds" concluded the program.

Mrs. W. E. Fox was hostess chairman for the meeting and served light refreshments.

Fete Grandson at Jolly
Party on Birthday

Mr. and Mrs. Grant Morgan entertained at their residence in Milledgeville with a gala birthday party honoring the fourth birthday anniversary of their grandson, Charles Grant Morgan, son of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Morgan.

A pink and white color scheme was used on the dining table where a large birthday cake beautifully iced with the wording "Charles Grant" was topped with four pink candles. Tall taplers flanked each side of the centerpiece.

The popular young honor guest received a fine variety of birthday gifts from the guests for which he responded sweetly. Those present for the occasion were Mr. and Mrs. Paul Garring-er, daughter, Ruth, of Jamestown; Mrs. Clara Morgan, Mrs. Edith Chamberlain, Mr. and Mrs. John Morgan, the host, hostess and honor guest.

ESSAY CONTEST ENTRIES DUE HERE ON MAY 5

$25 War Bond Prize Is First
Award in County: High
Schoolers Eligible

Students in Fayette County's five high schools have until May 5, a week from Saturday, to complete their essays to be entered in the contest sponsored by the Ohio War Manpower Commission and the Ohio Canners' Association.

To be titled, "Help Win the War in the Ohio Food Industry," the essays are to be 750 words long, typed double-space or legibly written in ink on one side of sheets of white paper 8 1/2 by 11 inches. Covers for the essays will be furnished at each school.

Judges will be Common Pleas Judge Harry Rankin, W. W. Montgomery, county agricultural agent, and Forest F. Tipton, managing editor of the Record-Herald.

All essays are to be submitted to the USES office on East Market Street here by 5 P. M. fast time May 5.

Other rules as listed by the association are:

Identification—Each essay shall use as its cover page a specially prepared cover sheet bearing a serial number identifying the contestant. The name of the contestant will not appear on the essay as it is sent to the judges. Attached to the cover sheet are two coupons bearing the same serial number as the cover. Each coupon will be marked with the full name of the contestant, his post-office address, the name of his English instructor, and the name of the school of the contestant. The first of these coupons will be detached by the contestant, who will retain it for identification. No prize will be presented without surrender of the appropriately numbered contestant's coupon. The second coupon will be detached and retained by the manager of the local USES office before the essay is submitted to the County Board of Judges. Upon application, these cover pages may be obtained free of charge from the manager of the nearest local office of the U. S. Employment Service. The cover must be fastened to the body of the essay by not fewer than two wire staples, placed within one-half inch of the left-hand (long) margin of the paper.

Bases for judging—The essays will be judged in the main on their originality and relevancy of thought, thoroughness of factual basis, excellence of language, and effectiveness of arrangement. Each manuscript must be legible and should be neat and well arranged.

County Prizes—In each county in which contest is carried on, the following prizes will be offered: A first county prize of a $25 war bond; a second prize of $15 in war stamps; third, fourth, and fifth prizes of $5 each in war stamps; and honorable mention of the ten contestants whose essays are next in order of excellence. The manager of the local USES office will make public announcement of the time and place of awarding the county prizes.

State Prizes—The first and second prize-winning essay from each county will be sent by the County Board of Judges to the Director of the War Manpower Commission of Ohio, to be submitted by him to the State Board of Judges. The

WCS

Mrs. Marguerite Heironimus, Mrs. Priscilla Brown, Mrs. Rachel Benton, Mrs. Celeste Zimmerman, Mrs. Janis Creamer, Mrs. Martine Straley, Mrs. Miriam Allen, Mrs. Mary Jones were hostesses to the WCS of the Methodist Church on Wednesday afternoon. It was their regular meeting and Mrs. Wayne Vannorsdall at the piano gave the prelude followed by prayer by the president, Mrs. Eva Owens. The business meeting was then in session. The secretary's report was given by Mrs. Flora Robbins, and Mrs. Glenna Robinson, treasurer, gave the quarterly report and also a report on the Easter market. It was a splendid report. They asked for volunteers to go to the district meeting at Cedarville. Several responded. The visiting committee appointed were Mrs. Maude Straley, Mrs. Lena Baber, Mrs. Janis Creamer, Mrs. Dorothy Agle, program leader, gave a well prepared paper on "Churches of Europe," alternating with music. The refreshments were tasty and colorful. All enjoyed the social hour.

Traveling

Mrs. Altha Van Gundy left last week to spend some time with her sister, Mrs. Walter Martin in Battlecreek, Mich.

Visiting

Miss Glessa Ervin of Springfield enjoyed the week end at the country home of Mr. and Mrs. Lohr Ervin.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Stackhouse of Springfield and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Porter, have reservations and are leaving Cincinnati on Tuesday for Ft. Blending, Fla., to spend two weeks with Mrs. Stackhouse's son, Dwight, who is taking his basic training there.

W. C. T. U.

Mrs. Belle Thompson entertained the members of the W. C. T. U. for their regular meeting on Friday, April 6. The president, Mrs. Lola Rector, opened the meeting by singing "O, Master Let Me Walk With Thee." Mrs. Oliver Nelson led in prayer leading up to the Lord's Prayer by the group. The secretary's report was given and approved. In the absence of the treasurer, there was no report.

Mrs. Rector then introduced Mrs. Lillie Moots as program leader for the afternoon. She announced the topic for the year,

"Forward Together For Total Abstinence." The topic for the afternoon was "Youth of Today," her material being well chosen and consisting of alternate readings on the subject and catchy little poems that just fitted in. She also insisted that we finish our afghan we are working on, so it can be placed where needed. Mrs. Eva Porter assisted Mrs. Thompson as light refreshments were served.

Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. Emerson Dowler of Jeffersonville wish to announce the marriage of their daughter, Myrtle Ruth, to Pic. Dennis W. Lewis, of Marine Corps, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Lewis of Jeffersonville.

The marriage was solemnized at the home of the bride's brother, Mr. Guy E. Dowler of Columbus, where she had lived for the past two years. Rev. Enoch Smith, pastor of Hilltop Church of Christ, officiated with a double ring ceremony, Sunday, April 8 at 4 P. M.

Another huge increase in the sale of air mail stamps at the Washington C. H. Post Office has been announced by Postmaster W. E. Passmore, who at the same time stated that there had been a healthy growth in postal receipts at the office for the first three months of this year.

During the past two years sale of air mail stamps at the Post Office here has grown by leaps and bounds, and the sales for the first three months in 1945 show an increase of over 20,000 compared with sales during the first three months last year.

Total sales of air mail stamps reached 27,460 for January, February and March in 1944 and for the first three months this year

This does not take into consideration the large number of air mail letters posted where ordinary stamps were used and notation made that it was "air mail."

In all more than 50,000 air mail letters were posted here during the three months, and this is taken as a large argument for bunching the air mail service here, in the shape of a pick-up station.

Postmaster Passmore also said that during the three months postal receipts here were $3,955.15 more than for the same three months in 1944. Receipts for the three months this year reached $20,125 compared with $16,169.85 for the same period last year.

MAN FROM HERE FINDS GERMAN PRISON 'LIVING HELL'

GEORGE SEXTON LOSES 51 LBS. IN FOUR MONTHS

On German Train Seven Days Without Food and Water

At least one Fayette County man was among the war prisoners held in the notorious German prison camps until he was released by advancing Americans. Sgt. George P. Sexton tells the story in one brief sentence in a letter received by relatives here, when he states, "I spent four months of living hell."

Sgt. Sexton, an infantryman, was captured by the Germans December 16, 1944, during the German counter offensive in Belgium, and released by the advancing Americans on Good Friday.

The barbaric Germans, whose treatment of American and other prisoners of war has been a shock to civilization, kept Sgt. Sexton and other American prisoners aboard a freight train for seven days and nights without food or water.

As a result Sgt. Sexton lost 51 pounds and narrowly escaped death when American aviators bombed the train Christmas Day. Bombing ceased when prisoners left the train and hurriedly formed the letters "PW" in a nearby field, so that aviators knew they were prisoners of war and ceased bombing the train, but not before several American prisoners had been killed.

Sgt. Sexton's wife, the former Juanita Perry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Perry, of 1008 Yeoman Street, is now at Camp Atterbury, Ind.

In a letter written to Mr. and Mrs. Perry, from the battle area, dated April 6, Sgt. Sexton graphically tells a little of the torture he underwent at the hands of the inhuman Germans.

Following are excerpts from his letter.

"This is Easter Sunday and the happiest day of my life. We were liberated on Good Friday. Today is the first time I have been out of barbed wire fence since December 19, 1944.

"Our forces are going by chasing the damn Jerries and I hope and pray I get one of them to mail this as it will be sometime before I can write direct to you.

"By the way I captured two Jerries this morning. I was put on guard next to a woods and two of them came out. They were the first ones I captured and did I work on them!

"I can tell you now I have spent four months of living hell. I weighed 218 pounds when I was captured and I now weigh 167. But don't worry, as they are flying food to us.

"Christmas day I was on a German box car and we were bombed by our air force. Several of the boys were killed. We were on the car seven days without food or water.

"Getting back to being liberated—when the Jerries found out our forces were coming they took us out in the rain and tried to march us into south Germany. The boys were so weak they fell down and couldn't make it. We carried some of them back. They shot one but by the time we were ready to start our forces came and got us.

"When the first American entered camp, we carried him for two hours, celebrating.

"I could tell you a lot of things that you couldn't believe, but don't want to worry you now, but will tell you all about it when I come home—and that won't be long now."

"Be sure and tell Nita to call Virginia Cannon and tell her Phil is here and safe and sound. I don't have to go back to the front again but am volunteering so I can settle a little score."

DIVORCE WANTED

Georgia Howe, a minor, by her next friend, Ethel Shreck, filing suit in Common Pleas Court against Willard Howe, to whom she was married January 7, 1942, asks divorce on grounds of gross neglect of duty and extreme cruelty.

Plaintiff states that the parties have been living apart for some time. She also asks restoration to her maiden name. Norman L. McLean represents the plaintiff.

CONSERVATIONIST GRANGE SPEAKER

A.W. Short Speaks at Madison Meeting Wednesday

Madison Good Will Grangers today have a clearer conception of the importance of conservation to farmers after A. W. Short, of the State Department of Conservation, spoke at a meeting in the Grange Hall Wednesday night.

Short urged the Grangers to preserve the topsoil by reforestation projects and to keep present wooded lands intact to avoid further erosion. He touched on the newly-opened San Francisco Conference also, saying: "If God isn't with them, we won't have peace."

The chorus from Madison Mills High School sang several musical numbers under the direction of Mrs. Kenneth Campbell.

Past masters' pins were presented to Wayne Shobe, Lowell Engle and William Looker, also at the open meeting the membership applications of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbert Streitenberger were received.

Refreshments were served after the meeting.

70 PER CENT QUOTA REACHED BY API

JUVENILES OF TWO CITIES ARE GIVEN WARNING

Miniature 'Feud' Flares Up Between Local and Wilmington Boys

As a result of a pronounced flare-up in the miniature "feud" between Washington C. H. and Wilmington juveniles Tuesday night, in which a fist fight or two and other aggressive acts allegedly took place in and near this city, 38 boys, of whom about 12 had been involved in the affair, appeared before Probate Judge Rell G. Allen, Wednesday evening. After questioning several of the boys, Judge Allen dismissed them with a warning not to be back in his court.

Judge Allen stressed the need of more friendly feeling among the youngsters of both cities, and pointed out the folly of carrying rivalries and ill feeling to such extremes as the report by officials investigating the affair.

It seems that groups from the two towns became abusive toward each other, and that when a car containing several boys allegedly crowded from the road, the affair flared up and resulted in a number of Washington C. H. boys taking refuge in a house at Jonesboro, where a larger group of Wilmington boys laid siege, and a fight or two took place.

The flare-up Tuesday night is said to have resulted from a series of incidents between boys from both towns, over a period of many months.

The boys appearing before Judge Allen were from both cities, and some of them had been rounded up by officials of both places, while others appeared voluntarily more in the nature of witnesses.

FOUR RUNAWAY GIRLS SENT BACK TO HOME

Four girls, 14 and 15 years of age, who had run away from the Ross County Children's Home and hitchhiked to this city, were taken into custody by the police Wednesday afternoon, and returned to that institution in custody of Mrs. Frances Segal, matron of the home.

THE OLD HOME TOWN

Fayette County Boys With Armed Forces

Chief Petty Officer Kenneth Lucas has been at home with his wife and family since Friday, April 13, on a leave after eight months duty in the South Pacific with the naval fleet aboard a cruiser.

CPO Lucas is a veteran of six and one-half years navy service, having enlisted in 1938.

Lt. Marvin Butz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Butz, Mt. Sterling, has been awarded two oak leaf clusters to add to the Air Medal while serving as pilot of a Ninth Air Force C-47 troop transport plane in France, it was reported here today.

In addition to this, two more oak leaf clusters adorn the Air Medal, and he also has the Presidential Citation and four battle stars on the European Theater of Operations service ribbon.

STEALS TIRES, IS BOUND OVER

Tires Returned When Police Get on Trail

Frank Fouch, 20, on a charge of stealing two tires and an automobile wheel from Bill Clark's garage, was held to the grand jury when arraigned before Judge R. H. Sites, Wednesday, and bond fixed at $500.

In lieu of the bond he was taken to the Fayette County jail to await grand jury action.

Fouch had taken the tires over the week-end, and when Chief of Police Vaiden Long went to Dayton and investigated there, where Fouch was employed, Fouch could not be found, but when he found the Chief had been there, he brought the tires back here and turned them over to Clark, who filed charges against him.

Fouch was formerly employed by Clark and had been dismissed as result of some of his acts.

WOMAN IS GIVEN FINE: FACES ANOTHER COURT

Mrs. Neva Massie, taken into custody on a charge of disorderly conduct, was fined $16.20 in Judge R. H. Sites' Court, Wednesday.

nesday and then turned over to the Juvenile Court for a hearing on a contributing to the delinquency of minors, charge.

She was placed in the county jail until her arraignment in Juvenile Court.

The Germans were the first to keep medical histories of persons transported by air.
